

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A safety bus system especially for tabletting machines includes at least one bus-capable module, at least one bus controller and at least one bus line interconnecting the at least one bus-capable module and the at least one bus controller. At least one safety function can be implemented by the safety bus system. The at least one safety function may be performed essentially simultaneously with at least one control function and/or at least one measurement function.